

MISSION STATEMENT AND OBJECTIVES

1. To disseminate the origin and history of the Royal Navy Command Field Gun competition by setting up, maintaining and developing a heritage centre at Crownhill Fort. Particular reference will be made to the naval field gun in the context of the Boer War and Britain's activities in Southern Africa.
2. To use the Heritage Centre to display and conserve the field gun equipment, memorabilia, photographs and artwork.
3. To make the Heritage Centre freely accessible to the public, & the local Plymouth community in particular, in pursuance of Objective 1.
4. To give presentations, stage exhibitions and give demonstrations for the local community in pursuance of Objective 1.
5. To maintain a position as a centre for naval field gun technical advice, practical support and encouragement freely available to all who continue all forms of field gun competition: particularly youth groups.
6. To forge and maintain working links with other related heritage organisations and museums.
7. To be the leading association to foster and support the fraternity of former Command field gunners and those who practise other forms of field gun competition.
8. To raise funds:
 - a. In support of these objectives,
 - b. For recognised naval and military charities,
 - c. To give aid and support to former Command field gunners who find themselves in distressed circumstances.
